Network Disclosure Announcement No. 459

Rate Adaptive Digital Subscriber Line (RADSL) Interface (Including the Discrete Multi-Tone (DMT) Interface Updated 01/05/06

ORIGINAL Disclosure Date: February 19, 2001
Update to Network Disclosure News #431

Summary:

This disclosure announcement announces the availability of a Discrete Multi-Tone (DMT) Rate Adaptive Digital Subscriber Line (RADSL) physical layer interface along with an Asynchronous Transfer Mode (ATM) cell interface at layer 2.

This interface will be used in conjunction with Qwest's "DSL Services". It will be the interface provided to an end user desiring to connect to either their Internet Service provider or their Corporate LAN by way of a high speed Digital Subscriber Line (DSL).

Locations and Timing of Deployment:

Locations where DMT RADSL is currently available can be found in Attachment 1. If the interface changes in the future, Qwest will issue a new Network Disclosure. In addition, any new deployment locations will be added to the Qwest web site at http://www.qwest.com/disclosures in disclosure #459.

Pricing:

The Qwest DSL Service using the DMT RADSL will be offered under tariff in the locations identified in Attachment 1.

Interface Requirements:

- American National Standards Institute, Inc. Document Number T1.413-1998, "Network and Customer Installation Interfaces – Asymmetric Digital Subscriber Line (ADSL) – Metallic Interface", provides technical details of the interface being deployed.

  Document available for purchase at:
  > American National Standards Institute
  > 1819 L Street, NW
  > Washington, DC 20036
  > 212.642.4980

- Customer modems that support International Telecommunication Union's recommendations G.992.3 (01/05), "Asymmetrical Digital Subscriber Line Transceivers 2 (ADSL2)" Annex A and G.992.5 (01/05), Asymmetrical Digital Subscriber Line (ADSL) Transceivers – Extended Bandwidth ADSL2 (ADSL2+)" Annex A will be allowed to connect to the network as long as they can operate in the standard ADSL mode that complies to ANSI T1.413-1998.

  Any exceptions in compliance to ANSI T1.413-1998 are documented in the following vendor interface specifications:

- Cisco Systems<sup>TM</sup> T1.413 – Issue 2, Interface Specification

   Products: TA 1124 24 Port DSLAM and TA 1148 48 Port DSLAM
   This architecture allows Qwest to provide collocation availability to any local carrier wishing to use this architecture, within Qwest pedestals, using this collocated space product.

   All locations where Qwest has implemented remote DSLAM equipment are on the Remote DSLAM Disclosure found on the Network Disclosure #459 web site.

- Combo Card

   Qwest is proposing a new architecture using the Litespan 2000 Combo Card from Alcatel.  More information is available at:

Additional technical information of how the interface is utilized for Qwest DSL Service is contained in Qwest Technical Publication 77392, "Qwest DSL". This document will be available at http://www.qwest.com:80/techpub/

Additional Information:    Any customer premises equipment vendor/manufacturer or enhanced services provider wanting to offer products or services in conjunction with the DMT RADSL Interfaces may request additional information by contacting:

Fernando Prieto Ochoa
Qwest
1801 California St.,
Denver CO, 80202
303 308 5501

Technical Information:    The following is information that contained in Qwest Technical Publication 77392.

For those Qwest DSL Hosts who will receive customer traffic from customers using the Qwest !NTERPRISE enhanced service Qwest IDSL$^{SM}$, the Qwest DSL Host must be able to support Logical Link Control (LLC) encapsulated Point-to-Point Protocol (PPP) payloads as described in Request for Comments (RFC) 2364, "PPP over ATM Adaptation Layer 5 (AAL5)".

Following are locations that provide the DMT RADSL Interface. This list is subject to change. An asterisk in the margin denotes a change or addition to the previous release.
